Nigeria

Ambassador Saidat Omowumi Dauda is a visionary entrepreneur and the founder of Abisal Foods, a Nigerian company committed to transforming the agricultural sector by addressing critical food security challenges while empowering communities. With a background in agricultural innovation and a dedication to uplifting marginalized groups, Amb. Dauda has established herself as a champion for youth, women, and persons with disabilities. Her leadership at Abisal Foods emphasizes the role of technology and training in modernizing agriculture, particularly through scalable solutions that bridge gaps in local farming, processing, and food security. Through her work, Amb. Dauda continues to inspire a new generation of agribusiness entrepreneurs, driven by the belief that sustainable farming practices and community empowerment are essential for Nigeria's future.

Abisal Foods

Abisal Foods is a Nigerian agribusiness focused on sustainable farming, processing, and packaging of locally grown crops into nutritious products. The company addresses Nigeria's dietary needs by offering affordable, nutrient-rich food options from indigenous crops, supporting food security and fighting malnutrition. Abisal Foods boosts local economies by enhancing small-scale farmers' productivity through advanced farming techniques like irrigation, hydroponics, and improved animal husbandry, ensuring year-round productivity and resilience to climate impacts.

Abisal processes crops like maize, cassava, millet, and yams into high-quality, value-added products suitable for all ages. By sourcing raw materials locally, the company supports Nigerian farmers and reduces reliance on imports, fostering economic growth. The company prioritizes eco-friendly packaging, ensuring products reach consumers in optimal condition, free from contamination. Through innovation in farming, processing, and packaging, Abisal Foods is transforming Nigeria's food landscape, making healthy foods accessible while empowering local communities.
